While new construction is the traditional driver of supply in real estate, foreclosures now have a strong impact on inventories, particularly at the local level. Rising inventories, through construction or foreclosure, place downward pressure on the median home prices.

Foreclosures by Type

Monthly Market Data - August 2010	Chicago	U.S.
Market Share: Prime (blue), Alt-A (green), and Subprime (red)			The Chicago market has a lower share of subprime loans than the average market, but rising prime foreclosures are becoming a problem
PRIME: Foreclosure + REO Rate			There was a substantial increase versus February of this year The current local prime rate is high compared with the current U.S. average
SUBPRIME: Foreclosure + REO Rate			The local subprime rate eased modestly relative to February of this year The current local rate is high given the U.S. average
ALT-A: Foreclosure + REO Rate			The alt-A foreclosure rate rose slightly over the most recent 6 months The current rate for Chicago is high compared with the U.S. average

The "foreclosure + REO rate" is the number of mortgages, by metro area, that are either in the foreclosure process or have completed the foreclosure process and are owned by banks divided by the total number of mortgages for that area.

Prime Foreclosures and Delinquencies in Process

Monthly Market Data - August 2010	Chicago	U.S.
Prime: 60-day Delinquent			The local 60-day delinquency rate fell over the 6-month period ending in August suggesting that 90-day delinquencies will decline in the near future
Prime: 90-day Delinquent			Chicago's 90-day delinquency rate climbed faster than the national average over the most recent 6-month period suggesting a bulge of foreclosures in the future
Prime: Foreclosure + REO Rate			The increase in the 90-day delinquency rate over the most recent 6-month period suggests a near term increase in the foreclosure rate, which should then shrink as the decline in 60-day delinquencies moves its way through the system

The Mortgage Market

30-year Fixed Mortgage Rate and Treasury Bond Yield

After rising in the first half of the second quarter, the average 30-year fixed rate mortgage followed the 10-year Treasury bond downward in the third quarter. The sharp drop in home sales in July following the expiration of the Federal tax credit sent stock markets into a quandary. Soft economic indicators in July and August maintained this pattern, but by August, rates were falling for a different reason. Speculation that the Federal reserve would engage in a second round of mortgage and Treasury purchases to stimulate the economy by lowering the cost of borrowing, dubbed QE2 for the second round of such quantitative easing, sent the yield on the 10-year Treasury to record lows and the 30-year fixed rate mortgage followed suit. The average 30-year fixed rate mortgage, as measured by Freddie Mac, registered 4.32% in the first week of September, a record, and stayed under 4.4% the entire month. However, the spread between the 10-year Treasury and 30-year FRM rose 24 basis points in the third quarter to 166. The bulk of the Federal Reserve's quantitative easing was expected to be implemented through purchases of 2-year and 10-year Treasury notes. Consequently, demand for these instruments surged relative to long-term mortgage debt, which caused the spread to widen.

A Closer Look...At Homeownership

Homeownership Rate	Chicago	U.S.
Ratio for 2009	69.2%	67.4%	Chicago's homeownership rate fell in recent years, but was above the national average in 2009.
Ratio for 2010 Q3	68.5%	66.9%
Historical Average	63.2%	66.5%

Nationally, nearly 6.5 million homes went into foreclosure from 2005 through 2009. As a result, the homeownership rate fell from a high of 69.0% in 2004 to 67.4% in 2009. The share of homes owned by investors and banks has grown and this trend will weigh on the homeownership rate for years to come. Locally, there were 287,503 foreclosures in Illinois over this same 5-year period. The result was a decline in the statewide homeownership rate from its recent peak of 72.7% in 2004 to 69.1% in 2009.
